LEARNERS from Malukazi informal settlement and surrounding areas near Isipingo, south of Durban, will have an opportunity to learn more about their local icons at school.

This is after Windy Heights Primary School recently named all its eight blocks and two special classrooms after local icons that have contributed immensely to the betterment of people's lives and excelled in their respective career fields. The naming of school blocks, which culminated in a massive event of the unveiling of plaques on the 29th of September, was aimed at preserving local history for younger generations. Individuals whose names were identified and carved on plaques in different blocks were Minister of Cooperative Governance and Traditional Affairs Dr Nkosazana Dlamini Zuma, two Durban-born businessmen Sandile Zungu and Moses Tembe, Founder of the K-Cap and Ekhaya Multi-Arts Centre Edmund Mhlongo, internationally-renowned musician Nkosinathi Maphumulo who is also known as DJ Black Coffee, Charlotte Mannya-Maxeke, Katie Mannya-Makanya, storyteller Dr Gcina Mhlophe and politician Florence Mkhize.

The other two individuals were Malukazi residents Maurice Fayers who donated a piece of land where Windy Heights is built and Dawood Kader who was very instrumental during the campaigns that led to the existence of the school.

Delivering the keynote speech, Dr Dlamini Zuma said the naming of the school blocks was a brilliant idea of preserving local history. "We really need this in our communities. I have no doubt that this will take the school very far in terms of development. I have attended many events in previous years but I have never seen one of this kind. I am grateful to have been identified as one of those honoured today," she said.

"I cannot promise heaven and earth, but I have listened carefully to what the Principal said when she was briefing us about the challenges faced by the school. We will communicate and I will assist where possible," she added.

OVER 250 families from Malukazi informal settlement near Isipingo in the south of Durban received Christmas food parcels from the world-renowned organization Gift of the Givers recently. All recipients were families of Windy Heights Primary School learners that were identified by the school's Learner Support Committee through its programme of providing relief to the less privileged.

Founder of Gift of the Givers, Dr Imtiaz Sooliman personally came to address the recipients and hand over the gifts. Delivering his speech, he said he was hopeful that recipients of the food parcels were happy with the parcels. He said he understood that some people do not have the privilege of enjoying Christmas due to the adverse economic cllimate and financial challenges. He thanked all the partners of Gift of the Givers who assisted them in making the day a

He said that parents, grandparents and community elders have a huge role to play in guiding children. "There is this notion that we grew up with which says, 'my child is your child'. Let's get that back and raise our children well because the future of our country is in the new generations. It is therefore our job to build a nation that will look after this country and raise children that will be sincere and honest," he said. He added that the country comes from a very bad past that brought so many injustices to people. "It is our responsibility to fix whatever that was broken in the past and build a country where our children will play together in peace. Schools play a very important role and they need to be supported in their efforts," he said.

One of the recipients of the food parcels Bonakele Ndlovu (52) from Road 4, Malukazi said she was very grateful to Gift of the Givers and Windy Heights for the gift she received. "My granddaughter is doing grade 3. I was very happy when she was identified by the school as a needy learner because there's no one working at home. We need all the help we can get," she said. Beaming with excitement, the Principal of the school Miss Thembekile Makhanya said the school was very grateful for the work done by Dr Sooliman's organization. "We consider ourselves lucky that this time Dr Sooliman personally came to be part of this event. We know that he is a busy man and his schedule is always very tight," she said.

She also made a plea to Dr Sooliman to adopt Windy Heights Primary School and the entire community of Malukazi. "We believe that after your organization's first visit to the school earlier this year, you saw the need to come back. Please come more often because there is a great need in this area," she said.

Prior to Dr Sooliman's visit, a wall plaque with his name was installed in the school's reception area as part of honouring him for his humanitarian work. This plaque was unveiled by him on the day of his visit. Gift of the Givers initially visited Windy Heights Primary School in May this year after the floods that destroyed many homes in Malukazi and other parts of Durban. At that time, more than 180 families were given food parcels and blankets as part of providing them with temporary relief.

Young blood in the school management team

learners.

Dr Dlamini Zuma then revisited her own past to motivate learners that were part of the event.

"Just bear it in your mind that your background does not determine vour future When I look around, I can see where some of you come from. Chase after your dreams and pay no attention to your current situation. I also come from a very humble background but I never let that determine my future. At some point during my school days, other learners used to laugh at me because I did not have school shoes. But I would always beat them when it came to school work.' Taking to the podium, Moses Tembe said he always had a dream of opening a business school. "This is a great honour for me and the timing is just perfect. I know now that whatever I need to do in terms of planning for the business school that I wish to open, I will come to Windy Heights," he said.

"Sandile Zungu, who is also the President of KwaZulu-Natal-based AmaZulu Football Club vowed to maintain good relations with the school. "The school has earned a lifetime friend in me. It feels so good to be recognized for the good work that you do by people from home," he said.

DJ Black Coffee, who mostly spends his time abroad due to work commitments, couldn't make it to the event on the day, but his sister Lungi Maphumulo was there to represent him. He did however visit the school at the beginning of November where he was granted the opportunity to personally re-unveil his plaque. His organization, Black Coffee Foundation together with Hollywoodbets, donated school shoes to over 180 learners and other school items. Addressing scores of learners who couldn't contain their excitement. h message was short and sweet: "Nothing is impossible. I come from the same background as you. We want you to be leaders of this country. I need you to understand that you are the future. You must take responsibility for what you are doing while you are still young," he said. "I am leaving you with a message of inspiration and love which says that you can be anything you want to be. I hope to see you again next time I come around," he concluded.

Windy Heights Principal Miss Thembekile Makhanya said she was grateful that the event was a huge success. She added that she had many plans on the pipeline for the school.

THE PRINCIPAL'S CORNER

SEASON'S greetings to all members of the Windy Heights Community. What a year 2022 has been! First and foremost, I would like to extend my sincere gratitude to all members of this community for their inputs throughout 2022, and for ensuring that the year becomes a huge success. I couldn't be happier. Looking at the series of activities that have taken place at Windy Heights Primary School, the year has indeed been the busiest, most colourful and rewarding to learners. Congratulations to all our learners for doing well, especially our Grade 7 class of 2022. Without a shadow of doubt, I know they will represent us well in the high schools they are going to. Allow me to introduce our publication Windy Heights Primary School News to you. This is our in-house newsletter with which we intend to revive an old publication that the school had in previous years. This is a platform where we are going to publish stories about all important school activities, announcements to parents and updates on new developments in the school. It will also provide a platform where parents, teachers, stakeholders and all members of the Windy Heights community will be able to communicate and share their views, opinions or suggestions on things pertaining to the development of the school. This is our first issue. As from 2023, this newsletter will be published twice a year. The first issue will be out at the end of term 2 and the second one at the end of term 4. I am hopeful that this newletter will be beneficial to everyone.

Hard work pays off for Windy Heights learners

By Windy Heights Reporter

WINDY Heights Primary School's top achievers for 2022 were highly commended for their full commitment to their school work.

The school Principal Miss Thembekile Makhanya said the school was very proud. Delivering her keynote speech at Lotus Park Community Hall outside Isipingo in the south of Durban where this year's Top Achievers' Annual Awards were held, she encouraged these learners to keep up the good work.

"We will be closely monitoring the progress of learners from this year's Grade 7 class as they will be moving to high schools next year. We have done that with previous Grade 7 classes and we will continue doing it. This is to monitor their academic progress," she said. Delighted learners, accompanied by their parents, came in their numbers to receive their certificates, trophies and medals. A Grade 7 learner, Sifiso Jwara couldn't contain his tears when he was announced as a top-achiever of the day.

Walking up the stage with his mum to receive a Dux Award, Sifiso reduced the audience to tears when he broke down. Another learner Azande Mbatha, who also wept on stage, received a Fellowship Award that seeks to recognize the most well-behaved learner who worked tirelessly towards the betterment of other learners and the school. Initially, Windy Heights' awards ceremony sought to recognize learners from Grade R to 7 who excelled academically in different classes. However, this year, other categories that recognize excellence in extra-curricular activities were also included.

A number of learners who participated in different sport-codes were also awarded. The rugby team convenor Mr Philani Mbitamkhono said he was hopeful that recognition of excellent in sport was going to encourage other learners to actively participate next year.

■ THE school also hosted an annual Grade R graduation ceremony where scores of learners received their certificates and early Christmas gifts. The graduation event was graced by the presence of Miss Liesel Krouchamp who is a Foundation Phase Departmental Head at Doon

Success stories for 2022

By Windy Heights Reporter

ONCE again, learners that participated in different curricular-related competitions didn't disappoint this year.

Antoinette Pillay from Grade 6 participated in the Department of Education's Spelling Bee where she persisted until towards the final stage of the competition in a district level. The school's drama group scooped an award in the drama competition at a circuit level

Intermediate and Senior Phase learners participated in the debut Annual Elocution Festival held at Paul Sykes Primary School in the north of Durban. The school was presented with a trophy and certificates for these learners' participation in different categories that mostly sought to help them improve in English.

A Grade 2 learner Sinqobile Phungula took many by surprize when she scooped an award for producing the best road-safety poem in the eThekwini Region. In the same competition, her fellow schoolmate, a Grade 7 learner Lerato Madlala snatched position 2 in the speech category. Apart from the trophies, the two learners also bagged cash, both for themselves and the school. The competition was an initiative of the eThekwini Municipality's Transport Authority that aims to raise awareness about road safety.

A number of learners in the Intermediate and Senior Phase participated in the Nalibali storytelling and reading programmes.

Windy Heights partners with KZN Philharmonic Orchestra to revive music

By Windy Heights Reporter

MUSIC is one of the oldest skills that many schools are still holding on to. This is because of its therapeutic nature to those who take interest in it and also its possibility of changing people's lives when it is being done in a professional manner. It is for these reasons that Windy Heights Primary School works so hard to find ways of improving it. In pursuit of this, the school has partnered with the world-celebrated ensemble, KZN Philharmonic Orchestra. Their partnership dates back to 2018 and it has seen the ensemble visiting the school on an annual basis.

During their visits, they perform songs with the school choir and also give lessons to learners on the use and importance of different musical instruments. The orchestra's recent visit to the school was earlier this year. Windy Heights Primary School choir master Mr Linda Makhathini, who is the brains behind this fruitful partnership, said it feels good to see learners taking interest in music and making good use of all the opportunities given to them. "This is going to mould their skill. I was very excited when the Orchestra agreed to partner with us. We have worked very well over the past years and our children learn so much from them. Prior to their visits, they usually send us songs that our choir sings with them. This encourages our children to be literate enough to master the lyrics and sing those songs well," Mr Makhathini said.

MORE intermediate and senior phase learners from Windy Heights Primary School will be featured into the Nalibali reading and storytelling TV programme next year.

The programme facilitator in the school Mr Linda Makhathini who is also the Departmental Head in the intermediate phase said he was very proud of this year's participants and their amazing performance.

"Nalibali is an organization that seeks to enhance children's reading and storytelling skills. The organization works with schools.

Recently, Nalibali introduced a storytelling programme that is being aired by SABC1 on a weekly basis as part of the children's early morning shows. "Learners from the intermediate and senior phase who portrayed interest in storytelling were identified and chosen to be part of the programme. Throughout the year, they would come to school on weekends to shoot stories that have all appeared on SABC1.

"The school has been highly commended by parents for this programme. Looking at how successful it has been year, one has to find ways to ensure that more of our learners are being roped in," he said. He also commended Durban actress Nompumelelo Ndlovu of UKhozi FM's radio drama and SABC1's telenovela series Uzalo for her support. "She is part of the programme and has been working very well with us. Her patience and storytelling skill are quite amazing," he added.

Windy Heights teacher helps learners improve literacy

By Windy Heights Reporter

REVIVING the seemingly dying culture of reading in youngsters is every educator's concern.

A Windy Heights Primary School's intermediate and senior phase teacher Miss Nomathemba Hlatshwayo is one of the dedicated youngsters in the teaching profession who would stop at nothing to improve learners' literacy levels.

when she became part of the new reading programmes in Ukhozi FM's Saturday's show that is presented by Irvin Sihlophe. The programme is sponsored by the children's organizations, European Union and Unicef, Department of Basic Education, National Education Collaboration Trust and Ukhozi FM's Basic Education Unit.

and extensively and analyse primary school language books. This is done in the presence of learners in the studio who are often being questioned about the content of the book selected to be read on the day.

Explaining how she became part of the show, Nomathemba said she was approached by one of the senior educators in a teachers' social media group that she is a member of. "He explained to me that he was looking for people to be part of a new reading program that involved Ukhozi FM. He asked if I could read and I said yes. From there, we started communicating and sharing information until I personally met him. The program started and I'm very much excited," she said.

Nomathemba continued that as an educator, she understood the relief and freedom that comes with good literacy levels in children. "I'm hopeful that as time progresses, kids from my school will also be taken to join me in studio," she added.

Good Samaritans extend a helping hand to learners with barriers

By Windy Heights Reporter

POOR eye-sight and the onset of puberty are some of the challenges that have hindered the academic progress of many learners in the basic education level, especially those coming from less-privileged backgrounds. To provide relief to learners with these challenges, Windy Heights Primary School received a number of donations from two members of the school alumni, Mrs Anele

Pieterson and her twin sister Andile Mthembu who are both optometrists. Anele, who is also a Mrs South Africa pageant finalist, donated spectacles to a number of learners with eye-sight problems and sanitary towels to young girls.

Also, a non-profit organization, Ubuntu, managed by local young woman Amkela Makhanya has also donated sanitary towels to the school on numerous occasions this year.

Windy Heights caters for teachers' well-being

By Windy Heights Reporter

TO cater for teachers' mental well-being and also live up to a saying that a teacher is a lifelong learner, Windy Heights Primary School hosted a number of colourful, fun-filled and informative events for teachers this year.

On the 5th of October, the school celebrated International Teacher's Day at Amanzimtoti in the south of Durban. The event was spectacular as teachers were elegantly dressed and in a celebratory mood. They were honoured for their efforts and devotion towards providing quality education to learners. A number of guests that were invited had a lot to share about the ethics and principles of the teaching profession. The celebration was then wrapped up with an exciting trip to the Drakensburg in the KZN Midlands where teachers spent the whole weekend enjoying the beauty and fun activities in the berg. In March this year, female teachers celebrated International Women's Day in style when they opted to have a discussions about women issues with a purpose of finding solutions on their challenges and empower each other. A number of teachers seized that opportunity and tackled some of the issues that have a negative impact in the working environment. In celebration of Men's Day in July, male educators were given a platform to deliver their speeches about male figures that had a positive impact in their lives. The day was filled with emotions, as most of the presentations done on the day laid bare that young men also need to be supported and groomed well so they can become responsible citizens. During International Men's Day in November, the school decided to honour one of the late school's retirees, Mr AB Bikka who served the institution as a Departmental Head a few years ago.

The purpose was to celebrate his life and honour him for his good deeds and the passion he had for learners' education while serving young minds of the school.

Farewell to veteran educators

By Windy Heights Reporter

THREE senior educators who have served the school for decades retired this year. They are Mrs Gabisile Tshabalala (left) who taught Social Sciences and IsiZulu in the intermediate and senior phases; Mathematics veteran Mr Karan Seupersad (middle) and the Late Miss Nelisiwe Khathi (right) who taught in the foundation phase.

Condolences to the Khathi family for the passing of Miss Nelisiwe who succumbed to an illness a recently.

The school will forever be grateful for all the contributions these dedicated members made to the school and the manner in which they upheld all the principles and ethics of the teaching profession till the end of their careers.

THE future looks bright for learners that are participating in Windy Heights' newly-introduced sport codes. Teams for these codes were formed earlier this year with a purpose to assist learners have a variety of extra-curricular activities to choose from as that may assist them generate more income in the future. The codes include rugby, table tennis, volley ball and golf.

The rugby team, led by one of the teachers Mr Philani Mbitamkhono and his assistant Mr Brian Msibi worked tirelessly and participated in some region-based tournaments recently where they did amazingly well. Mbitamkhono said he was very impressed that the participants in his rugby team showed great interest and were very keen to learn more. "It doesn't really show that this sport code has only been introduced to them this year. They attended the Coaching Clinic at Kings Park Stadium in preparation for the tournament that they participated in recently. Three players had the privilege captain to visit and watch the Springboks in training. They were also provided with lunch," he said.

He added that the team played seven games this year and they lost in the semi-finals in one of the tournaments.

Mbitamkhono also indicated that apart from the two major tournaments that his team will participate in next year, there are many plans pipelined for the coming years.

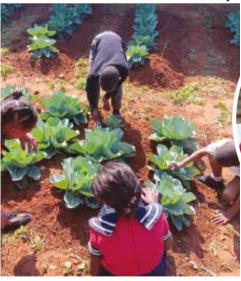

On the other hand, the foundation phase golf team recently participated in this year's Mother of all Golf Days that was organized by the partners of the school, Charlotte Mannya-Maxeke Foundation at Durban Country Club. The golf and tennis teams are led by Mr Smiso Momoza who is the Departmental Head in the Foundation Phase and Miss Joy Soupen who is a Maths teacher in the Intermediate Phase.
